1985-2020

A compilation of mediumwave logs from Sheigra DXpeditions

Part 1: The Americas

Sheigra DXpedition Log

This is a compilation of logs from past Sheigra DXpeditions for stations heard in the Americas (a separate compilation has been made for those stations heard in Africa, Asia and the Pacific).

Sheigra is a small crofting village in the North West Scottish Highlands. The A838 makes its way to Rhiconich where the B801 branches off to Kinlochbervie. To arrive the traveller must pass through some of the most spectacular scenery in the world. The Scottish Highlands are a vast and unique place. At the head of Loch Inchard, the side road follows the northern shore to the fishing port of Kinlochbervie, four miles northwest of Rhiconich.

Beautifully situated, the B801, both single and double tack, is the narrow winding road leading north-westwards from Rhiconich with splendid views towards the lonely mountain Reay Forest, dominated by Foinaven and heads west to Kinlochbervie. Through the crofting townships of Achriesgill, Inshegra, Badcall Inchard and Oldshoremore to Blairmore and Balchrack, the road continues for some four miles towards the open sea with fine views, and ends beyond Balchrack at Sheigra, the last habitation on the west coast and a small hamlet of the western coastline.

The first visit to the area took place in 1979, when Dave Kenny, Chris Greenway and James Hobson ventured north for a mini-DXpedition based in nearby Oldshoremore, just a short distance away from Sheigra.

The first DXpedition to Sheigra itself took place in October 1985 with Mark Hattam, John Faulkner, Ian Kelly and David Hyams travelling north to Sutherland, whilst the latest was in October 2020 with Dave Kenny and Alan Pennington.

As the results show in the two compilations, some excellent reception has been heard over the years and Sheigra can boast having been the place where both Alaska and Australia have been heard in the British Isles, probably for the first time since the 1930's.

Both compilations have been put together from all of the past Sheigra DXpedition Reports, with extra logs added from some personal logbooks. This explains why there may be additional entries for some stations on certain DXpeditions. On the other hand, some participants didn't log the easier-to-hear stations on some of the earlier DXpeditions, which is quite understandable, hence the absence of these when they would have almost certainly been present.

There may very well be errors or omissions in both compilations. However, these can be corrected and a new new version made without difficulty. Please advise Tony Rogers of anything that needs amending. Thanks.

The original DX base where it all began in 1985! The aerals were fed out of the window in the kitchen extension to the right. The two cottages used since November 2002 appear in the photograph at the end of the compilation.

Sheigra DXpedition Reports

A selection of Sheigra DXpedition Reports can be found on the British DX Club website at www.bdx.org.uk/articles.

These include logbooks for specific DXpeditions, along with a description of the aerials, reception conditions, and other information (including the weather, which can be quite varied in that far north-western corner of Scotland!)

KBRW Barrow AK

kHz	Date	UTC	Details	DXP
680	05/10/85	0445	KBRW Barrow AK. Unusual language, struggled into noise level to hear what sounded like a programme in Eskimo, signal got stronger, peaking just above S9, and at 0500 ID heard "This is Top of the World Radio, KBRW, Barrow"	§1

Excerpt from DXpedition report by John Faulkner: " ... but the height of the DXpedition came at 0445 when I noticed a broadcast in an unusual language on 680, Mark (Hattam) quickly tuned into the same frequency and we struggled into the noise level to hear what sounded like a programme in Eskimo, the signal got stronger, peaking just above S9, and at 0500 we heard this ID "This is Top of the World Radio, KBRW, Barrow"!"; this reception marked the first from Alaska in the UK probably since the 1930's.

The two cottages used since November 2002. Mary's cottage is marked in red and was used for DXpeditions 47-54 and again for 59, whilst Murdo's cottage is marked in yellow was used for DXpeditions 54-58.
The original DX base is out of view just to the right of Murdo's place

Three different cottages have been used as bases for Sheigra DXpeditions since 1985:

DXpeditions 1-46	Angie and Lena's cottage
DXpeditions 47-54	Mary's cottage
DXpeditions 54-58	Murdo's cottage
DXpedition 59	Mary's cottage

The Sheigra DXpedition Log is compiled by Tony Rogers - dxguides@gmail.com
